'Tis a Gift to be Simple': Aaron Copland and the Creation of an American Musical Identity

Arguably the most important American composer after Charles Ives was the Brooklyn-born Aaron Copland, the "Dean of American Composers." Many of his nearly 100 works remain a part of the American repertoire and clearly illustrate a distinctive musical voice. FGCU's Dr. Tom Cimarusti explores how Copland captured the beauty of Appalachia as we enjoy one of Copland's masterpieces, Appalachian Spring. Tickets $15
